Arab summit looks set to revive demand for independent Palestinian state

Hussein throws his weight behind PLO

Arafat is star of the summit

ALGIERS, June 8, (Reuter): In the luxury suites of kings. Amirs and presidents. PLO leader Yasser Arafat is being couried as the star of the Arab summit.

The uprising in the West Bank and Gaza Strip is seen in Arab eyes as changing the course of resistance to Israeli rule. Arab leaders have paid homage by making the Algiers summit the best-attended in a decade.

Arafat, the chairman of the PLO, came to Algiers as the champion of the revolt.

At the last count, at least a dozen heads of state - both friends and former foes - had received him for private talks, a dramatic change in his fortunes since the last Arab summit, which was held in Jordan just a week before the uprising broke

 Al Seyassah adds: Oman decided to allow PLO to open an office in Muscat. This announcement came about after two meetings held between Arafat and the personal representative of Sultan Qaboos who is heading the Oman delegation to the Arab between Arafat and the Omani representative which took place last night and this morning were the first of their kind.

ALGIERS, June 8, (Agencies): Jordan's King Hussein gave unconditional support today to the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) and asked the oil-rich Arab states to give massive subsidies to the continuing struggle against Israel. In a major policy statement on the second day of the Arab summit, Hussein disclaimed any ambition to restore Jordanian rule in the Israeli-occupied West Bank. He insisted that the PLO must represent the Palestinian people at any future international peace conference.

Hussein was willing to back demands for Palestinian statehood, even if this did not lead to the international peace conference which all Arab states support as the first step towards a settlement

Blame

Speaking behind closed doors to the leaders of the PLO and 20 Arab nations, Hussein endorsed some aspects of US Secretary of State George Shultz' latest Middle East peace plan, but declared:

"The United States has no-Middle East policy other than support for Israel The US approach to the problem of the Arab-Israeli conflict is, unfortimately, based on a policy of crisis-management.

"The United States takes no political steps or initiatives unless there has been a recent eruption in the region taking on the aspect of a war.

Therefore, the King argued, the Shultz plan was launched because the Palestinian intifada (uprising) in the West Bank and Jaza was taking on the aspect of "Palestinian war against

"As American action usually ends with the passing of the crisis," Hussein declared, "we should support the uprising in an. organised and effective manner and ensure that it continues until it achieves its objectives."

Urged

Copies of Hussein's comments were made available by the Jordanian delegation.

Hussein urged Arab leaders to give their unanimous support to the uprising "through internationally acceptable political action, in order to win the world over to our side and so that the Palestinian people may feel that their legitimate struggle will lead, God willing, to success and vic-

Hussein, who has been lukewarm in his support for the PLO in the past, repeatedly stressed his wholehearted acceptance of the organisation as "the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinian people."

He said Jordan was prepared to form a joint Jordanian-Palestinian delegation at a future peace conference, but declared: Jordan will not represent the Palestinian people at the con-ference, nor will it negotiate a settlement of the Palestinian problem on behalf of the PLO." month Arab uprising.
In the occupied West Bank, soldiers shot and wounded four Palestinians during clashes in a refugee camp and a village near Nablus, hospital officials said. The Army confirmed both shootings but said only three Arabs were wounded.

Also in the West Bank, an Israeli motorist was injured in a firebomb attack, the Army said. Defence Minister Yitzhak Rabin toured the occupied Gaza

The Army confirmed soldiers shot one man in the Balata refugee camp, near Nablus, after youths started throwing stones at troops during a demonstration.

Israel offered to beef up protection for Arab officials after the stabbing of a West Bank mayor, but at least one mayor turned down the offer and said it would do more harm than good.

Hanna Atrash, the elected Arab mayor of Beit Sahour, a West Bank town of 6,000 near Bethlehem, said two jeeploads of soldiers came to his home this morning and offered to serve as his bodyguards.

"Two Army jeeps with eight soldiers came and told me that I can't go anywhere without them," Atrash said, adding that he turned them away. "I refused and told them it's

It said EEC food and cash contributions to UNRWA would total $46 million dollars in 1988.

Plane crash-lands on highway

MANCHESTER, England, June 8, (AP): An American student was in critical condition. today after a light plane crashlanded on a highway, ripping the roof off a car in which he and two other American students were riding, officials said.

Santiago Abasalos, in his early 30s, suffered severe leg and arm injuries while riding as a passenget in the car and is in intensive care in Hope Hospital near Manchester, said Julie Higgins, a spokeswoman for the Greater Manchester Police.

The two other students, driver Stephen Bright, 30, and Huang Wei, 27, were treated for cuts and bruises and released from the hospital, Higgins and hospital officials said.

The 25-foot (7.5 mefre) plane, a French Bruchard, was flying from Liverpool to Manchester when it ripped the top off the students Citreon car before landing with its wheels down on a busy roadway near Manchester in central England. The car was destroyed.

The plane was attempting to make an emergency landing at Barton aerodrome, a private airfield used by non-commercial aircraft, police said.

Zia imposes daily prayers

ISLAMABAD, June 8, (Reuter): President Mohammad Zia-ul-Haq has commanded civil servants to observe daily prayers, his first move to extend Islam in Pakistan since he sacked his government in part for not being good enough Muslims. Officials today said heads of department had been ordered to lead the regular daily prayers during office hours and government employees would be punished for not praying.

The move renewed debate among diplomats here whether Zia was acting out of genume faith, or whether trying to justify his May 29 dismissal of the government- and National Assembly.

Key

The answer, one diplomat said, holds the key to the immediate political future of Pakistan. Zia, who seized power in a 1977 coup, dismissed his hand-picked Prime Minister, Mohammad Khan Junejo, accusing Junejo's government of corruption and fiscal incompetence, and failing to maintain law and Zia also charged the government had failed to carry out his policies of extending Islamic laws and practices.

"If he is going to introduce

British MPs oppose death sentence

House of Commons voted by a wide margin last night against restoring the death penalty, which was officially abolished in Britain in 1969.

By a 341 to 218 vote, lawmakers defeated a resolution that would have empowered juries to recommend capital punishment for any crime.

It was the eighth failure to reinstate the death penalty in 19 years. Most of the other attempts would have allowed imposition of the death penalty for specific crimes, such as murder. All parties in the 650-member that would be worth the risk," Gale said. "I do not seek vengeance. I do not seek punishment. I seek solely a deterrent."

Commons allowed their members a free vote, and loud cheers filled the packed chamber when the result was announced after a 4-1/2-hours debate.

But Home Secretary Douglas Hurd criticised death penalty advocates who "take a remarkably broad brush approach to a power of life and death."

"The way to deal with violent crime is by strengthening the police, stiffening sentences, building prisons and, equally important, by reinforcing the self-con-fidence of all those who influence, or should influence, the young in this country away

The current drive to reinstate the death penalty got momentum from a newspaper survey in February. The nation's largest black union group, one of the organisers of the three-day protest, said it would consider meeting with the government's manp-ower chief to discuss the labour bill that sparked the general strike - reportedly the longest in the country's history.

Figures from government and private transport companies and employers indicated the black workforce attendance in the Johannesburg-Pretoria area was half of normal, while 90 per cent of black workers stayed home in Durban. The private Putco Bus Company said ridership from black townships east of Johannesburg was 98 per cent below normal and 40 per cent below average from Soweto, the country's lar-

The Statesman said Surinder Kaur went through the marriage ceremony despite opposition from her parents and Singh's parents.

The marriage rites were performed by a Sikh priest, the newspaper said. Kaur garlanded a photograph of Satwant Singh carried it around a fire seven times, in a bizarre version of an orthodox Sikh wedding ceremony, it said.

There was no word on whether the ceremony had legal or religious sanction.

Soviets rule out military solution in Mideast

THE Kremlin has told Syria, its key Arab protege, that a Middle achieved by political efforts and not military action, a local newspaper reported yesterday.

It quoted Karen Brutents, deputy chairman of the International Department of the Soviet Communist Party's Central Committee, as saying in a Moscow interview: "We have told President Hafez Assad that a Middle East settlement will not materialise through military might and that we are ready to reactivate political and diplomatic moves.

Brutents was quoted as saying the Soviet Union will continue contacts with the United States and Arab countries to convene an international Middle East peace conference, building on the achievements of the superpower summit of Moscow.

The Arabs have demanded an international conference under United Nations auspices to settle the Middle East conflict.

The Syrians lead the Arab hardliners, and have been building amid warnings that another war with Israel could not be ruled Washington initially resisted the idea of a conference, which would be attended by the Soviet Union.

It later accepts that, but only as a second step toward limited Palestinian self-rule in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, according to the latest US peace blueprint.

Settlement

The US concept also envisages limited powers for the proposed conference, and has not accepted that the Palestine Liberation Organisation should represent the Palestinians.

Brutents said that a settlement, worked out at the proposed conference should be based "on the concept of the balance of interests between the Palestinian right to self-determination and Israel's right to exist."

KUWAIT PRESS DIGEST

Last hope of collective Arab action

THE Kuwaiti daily Al Watan, yesterday warned that the summit of Arab leaders currently meeting in Algiers, is the last hope of collective Arab action not only for the Palestinians but for the solidarity and cohesion of the Arab notion itself.

"If we do not agree on what we are in practice agreed upon, is there any hope in the future of the Arabs solving the issues on which they differ," the newspaper said in reference to the popular uprising in occupied Palestine which entered the seventh month.

The extraordinary Arab summit which opened in Algiers on Tuesday night has been called to discuss the support the Arab states can extend to the uprising against the Zionist occupation which killed over 300, and injured thousands and detained over 17,000 according to Western reports. Noting that all the Arabs agreed on supporting "the revolution of the stones," the daily warned that "unless the summit comes out with clear resolutions supporting our people inside (Palestine) no hope can be pinned on future Arab summits no matter what slogans they raise." Al Watan reminded the Arab leaders that the shuttle of the US Secretary of State George Shultz in the region was prompted by "the loud sound of the Palestinian stone" and in a futile attempt to silence it in favour of the Israeli Interests.

The Arathleaders are facing a challenge to unite and support the blessed uprising and make of it a benevolent opening for future unity and electrostatical substitution as trong Arab voice upholding the uprising," Al Watan said.

Writing along the same lines, Al Rai Al Aam said that contrary to misconceptions of the sixtles and seventies, israel is not that mighty power which the Palestinians feared and shun away from.

The popular uprising has created a new situation which the Arabs should be quick to employ in rejecting the policy of occupation of the Arab lands by force, the newspaper suggested, adding that the American secretary of state had admitted that new facts have emerged in the region and called on Israel to understand these The Algiers summit can show seriousness in supporting the uprising "and in viewing the revolution as one of the venues leading to drawing a new future on the Arab land," the daily said.

The state of anxiety the Arab nation has been living in, should be brought to an end and progression of Arab change begun by joint Arab action based on clarity, frankness and consistency, Al Rai Al Aom underlined.

Call for decisive resolutions

UNITED ARAB EMIRATES (UAE) newspapers commenting editorially on the emergency Arab summit currently in session in Aiglers, called for adopting decisive resolutions to support the heroic Palestinian uprising in occupied territories. Al Ittihad newspaper of Abu Dhabi, commenting on the same sublect said "President Sheikh Zayed Bin Sultan Al Nahayan defined during his meeting with PLO leader Yosser Arofat, what is being expected by the Palestinian people and sons of the Arab nation from the Algiers surronit are ... either a just peace matching with aspired goals of the Palestinian people ensuring their legitimate rights of self-determination and statehood or to mobilise Arab human, military and economic patentials to liberate Palestinion territories from Zionist occupation. The paper cited this position to President Sheikh Zaved's remarks during his meeting with Arafat yesterday in which he said "if the Palestinian people achieve their goals it will be a source of delight for all Arabs but if not then Arab states should not be blamed but they have to mobilise all available potentials to liberate Palestine and this cannot be achieved without unifying Arab ranks." The paper said that if the Algiers summit is confined to the backing for the popular Palestinian uprising, Sheikh Zayed's words "defines the right path for supporting the heroic uprising as they embodied the UAE's principled stand towards supporting Arab national causes."

Concluding its editorial, Al Ittihad said that as all Arab states consider the Palestinian cause as a one for all Arabs, they should adopt decisive resolutions that would restore the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people of statehood and self-determination.

Al Wahda newspaper of Abu Dhabi, in its editorial compared the emergency Arab summit currently in session in the Algerian capital to the Khartoum Arab summit of 1967, saying that the Khartoum summit came after the defeat of Arabs in their wor with Israel, while the Algiers summit is being held to back the steadfastness and bless the Palestinian uprising in occupied territories.

"The current prevailing danger in respect to the Palestinian cause is that all peace initiatives in the region, prominent among which was the American peace plan corried by US State Secretary George Shultz, are all far from the crux of the problem as they ignore the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people and its sole legitimate representative — the PLO.

Despite the great differences between the Khartourn and Algiers summits, there is no fixed Arab initiative to invest the repercussions of the uprising in favour of the Arab nation unless a "surprise" occurs in the summit by announcing Arob rejection of the American peace plan and showing its determination to implement the Fez summit resolutions ... otherwise there is no way out but to go to war with israel to restore the usurped Arab rights.

roviding maids has pecome a good business

RINGING maids into Kuwait is become a good business as ev are in great demand both by tizens and expatriates.

Authorities concerned about _aids, have closed several : : nauthorised businesses volved in providing maids to ... buseholds.

A local newspaper toured a imber of maids offices (both athorised and unauthorised) to estain a closer look at the operaons. It noted that newspapers re replete with advertisements or bringing maids of various attionalities and capabilities. At ae such office, situated in one of leapartments, a man was sitting a living-room behind a rather nposing desk surrounded by his ssistants and a number of cusmers came asking for maids.

Haydar Falah, one of the cusomers said he came to the office fter reading an advertisement in he paper. He was in urgent need f a maid. The office provided im a maid who was at the office nd told him to pay them KD30 I graid's salary. After six days, he was forced to return the maid as she was not competent. The second maid lasted four days. The office, however, gave Falah only KD8 back, claiming the balance was their service charges. They informed him that he could go to the police should he

Another customer at the same office said he paid the office money for a maid two months earlier and obtained her a work permit. However, he had not received any maid. The customer added the office gives the maid on trial for several days to another customer and collects KD30 — this is while the maid is still under the sponsorship of the first customer — without the knowledge of the original customer who sponsored the maid.

AL SEYASSAH reported that a proposal to grant permanent residence to expatriates in Kuwait is still being studied by committees of the Higher Planning Council. The proposal is being studied by the public policies committee with other committees of the council. However, no information on developments have been reported, except, that as the proposal does not have a direct bearing on the five year plan the issue is not being treated as urgent. The proposal states that any expatriate seeking permanent residence should have lived in Kuwait for at least ten years and possess a clean record. The needs for his experience and qualifica-tions would also be considered as being vital for selection. The sources said the issue would not be discussed in the Council of Ministers.

brussel sprouts all seemed out of place in a night club when the temperature outside was over 40°. However, if you like that: type of fare it was very tasty and well prepared.

The desserts were similarly the kind that a rosy cheeked farmer's wife would serve up after a heavy day's harvesting or sheep shearing. There was a wide selection of home made pies which were delicious but really lacked fresh cream or custard to make them palatable. The crisp and caramelly brandy snaps were perhaps the greatest success.

The band created a lively atmosphere with their footstomping trad jazz, while, the waiters provided a brisk and efficient service. At KD5.500 per person including juices, water and coffee the evening was excellent value for money.

Farewell concert

By Keith Wells

PAUL FRASER, one of Kuwait's most popular entertainers, is leaving the country at the end of this month, so his two concerts at the Salmiyah Cinema on Friday will be his last performances in Kuwait.

The shows, produced by budding independent impresario, Ken Winston, will be called, 'Sounds Great'. Paul will be singing with the Juke Box Band, starring Phil Thomas and June Stephenson, with Walced doing his Michael Jackson dance routine. The first half of the show will be performed by popular local band Top Rank, with Adolph.

Paul Fraser has been in Kuwait for the past nine years. working as a civil engineer on the design and construction of Kuwait's motorway system. He's appeared in about thirty shows while he's been here. 'I've done all sorts really,' he says with a self-deprecating grin. 'It started when I went to audition for a pantomime and Ken Winston asked me if I'd like to play the Dame. He's been the one who kept suggesting new things for me to do. Alicia, my wife, also gave me a was the driving force behind all the Juke Box shows." His private shyness and lack of ego are in stark, and charming, contrast to his Over-The-Top stage performances. His impersonations of Elvis. Freddy Mercury, Gary Glitter and Bruce Springsteen have delighted local rock fans with their enormous talent and energy. "I really enjoy doing them, says Paul, especially Billy Idol, which Gail Seery described as my "grossest" impersonation so far." But they're more parodies than impersonations, they're all such outrageous personalities. It's been great singing for a thousand people, and I suppose I'll really miss it after I've gone.' Paul had played guitar and sang before he came to Kuwait, but never in public. Now, he says that he has no plans to carry on singing back in England, although he'd like to perform ballads, perhaps in a cabaret-type setting. "If you're interested in these things, though,' he confesses, 'they tend to find you.'

His future plans involve setting up his own business designing and building conservatories in the Kew area of south Lonlot of moral support and don. But encouragement behind the he'llend t scenes. Then Phil Thomas, he houses? don. But who knows, maybe ~he'll-end up rocking in the glas-

W. German broker in

VW fraud to confess

FRANKFURT, West Germany, June 8, (Reuter): A West German foreign exchange broker suspected of masterminding a currency swindle which cost Volkswagen AG 480 million marks

($282 million) will confess his involvement, a lawyer representing the broker said today. Lawyer Egon Geis told Renters Hans-

Joachim Schmidt was prepared to confess he had arranged fradulent currency deals between VW and the Hungarian National Bank which resulted in Josses of 380 million marks ($223 million) for the car maker. Schmidt, however, was denying charges that he profited from arbitration transactions by VW currency dealers which cost the company an estimated further 100 million marks ($58 million), Geis said. Schmidt, together with VW's former head of foreign exchange Burkhard "bobby" Jun-ger, is suspected of having masterminded the currency swindle. Schmidt is now in detention in the northern West German town of Oldenburg after his extradition from the United States last weekend. Junger has been in detention in Brunswick since April last year. Ge's said Schmidt would be prepared to confess his part in the swindle before the trial, which the prosecution does not expect to start before next year. A confession would speed up proceedings and the trial could start sooner, Geis noted. Volkswagen said last year the frand had involved "hedging" against currency movements at a time when the dollar was higher than at present.

Nyerere urges developing

KINGSTON, June 8, (OPECNA): Former Tanzanian president Julius Nyerere has urged developing countries to follow the example of the developed nations and unite for the purpose of negotiations between North and South. Delivering a keynote idress at a ceremony here, Nyerere decried the lack of unity among developing countries and their preference for bilateralism, the Inter-Press Service (IPS) reported. "Rich nations quarrel among themselves, but when they are dealing with poor states, they work together and organise themselves," Nyerere pointed out. "We, the poor countries of the economic South, must organise ourselves to decide what we can do better by joint action and to implement our joint decisions," he added.

The former Tanzanian president who is currently chairman of the South Commission established by the Non-aligned

Movement, said developing countries were vulnerable because being small, dependent and underdeveloped, they were forced to seek external capital to finance their development. All the industrialised countries, except Japan, had developed only after "massive injections of capital" and developing countries were not likely to be any different. Nyerere pointed to the imbalance in world trade, adding that poor countries "sell at prices fixed by developed countries and buy also at prices fixed by them ... it is they who set the interest rate on our loans." "Worse, we sell cheap and buy dear," the African leader said. He said developing

OPEC to try again to stabilise world oil prices

LONDON, June 8, (Reuter): Deep, politically tinged divisions confront the OPEC organisation which tries again in Vienna talks this weekend to agree on measures to stabilise world oil

Ruling prices in a generously supplied market are below an OPEC target of $18 a barrel, and the demand outlook is uncertain - so oil analysts say that the organisation may need a solid agreement on output quotas for the rest of 1988. Disarray

An existing accord expires at the end of June. But talks in April on trying to concert new output cuts with six producers from outside the organisation ended with OPEC in disarray.

The fact that the oil ministers failed to agree any new measures (in April) signals the latest depths of political divisions within the organisation," said industry analyst Geoff Pyne of Londonbased stockbrokers Phillips and

Iran, Algeria, Venezuela and

. OPEC has been split for a decade between members whoneed more money now and others, like the Saudis, who have petroleum reserves that will last well into the next century and fear that high prices might stam-pede the West into energy conservation and alternative energy.

Fergus McLeod of Barclays De Zoete Wedd said: "There are two camps. The majority who were very disappointed in April and are very disappointed that prices are low and would like to see a small cutback in produc-

"In the other, the Gulfproducers are pointing to higher demand and want an increase in the production ceiling."
The normal pattern when there are two camps is to roll over what they've got."

What OPEC has now is a December 1986 accord to try to keep prices at $18 by assigning output quotas to 12 of the 13 members - Iraq has excluded itself - within an overall ceiling of 15.06 million barrels per day

(BPD). Actual output is about 300,000 BPD higher, traders say, while market prices are below $17. For consumer nations, a compromise that simply rolled-over the existing accord would probably keep pump prices about where they are now in the coming months, analysts say. Grapple

Remarks by OPEC leaders suggest that the Vienna talks will have to grapple with three par-ticularly difficult issues alleged cheating on their quotas by some members, founder member Iraq's refusal to join in organisation output curbs and the future of cooperation with non-OPEC oil exporters.

One problem is to try to define petrol-rich natural gas conden-sates and then decide if these should count for quota purposes as crude oil.

Saudi Arabia and Kuwait believe some members are defining crudes as condensates, which do not at present count towards output quotas, allowing them to exceed production ceilings.

Founder member Iraq's refusal to participate in output restraint, on grounds that OPEC fails to give it a quota as big as that of Gulf war foe Iran, is an issue which has taken on new urgency, analysts say, because Iraqi production is set to increase substantially.

"The Gulf Arabs are coming to press hard for Iraq's inclusion. They feel it's becoming increasingly pressing to settle it." said McLeod.

Urgency

"For the first time, we detect a sense of urgency in the Saudi position to solve the issue this year, ahead of a one million BPD projected increase in Iraq's export capacity in 1989," says brokerage Kleinwort Grievson

Bank of Jordan to loosen controls on interest rates

AMMAN, June 8, (Reuter): Jordan's Central Bank expects its move to loosen interest rate controls will help reduce pressure on the dinar, a senior official said

Shukri said banks would now be allowed to deal in foreign currency banknotes, hitherto the preserve of moneychangers who handle about 10 per cent of foreign exchange dealings.

Japan's trade surplus in May likely to plunge

TOKYO, June 8, (Reuter): Japan is likely to chip a huge billion dollar chunk off its trade surplus in May, with much of that from its imbalance with the US, economists said.

"The bilateral trade situation between Japan and the United States is becoming very bright very optimistic," said economist Hidehiro Iwaki of the Nomura Research Institute.

The strong yen has been forcing Japanese manufacturers to raise prices of their goods sold in America, while the weaker dollar is helping US imports become more competitive amid a booming consumer market at home, economists said.

Economists see the overall Japanese trade balance falling to an average $5.2 billion from 6.4

be raised, an official at the Bank of England said today. "Before the BIS meeting, central bankers from countries with close links to Britain stop off at billion in the same month last year, marking the 13th straight month of declines.

"Japanese imports are growing faster than exports, keeping the trade balance falling," said economist Richard Jerram of the brokerage Kleinwort Benson International. "And imports should continue to outpace export growth for a couple of years.'

Projections on Japan's surplus with the United States are much more difficult, but several economists see it down by at least half billion dollars from $4.45 billion a year earlier.

That would be down for the fifth straight month. In April the bilateral surplus was $4.13

Japan will report the trade data tomorrow.

The United States will benefit the most from Japan's trimming of its trade surplus because the yen's strength has been mainly against the dollar rather than European currencies, economists said.

Japan's goods still are com-petitive in Europe, even though sales of its products in the United States are starting to deteriorate, Japan's trade gap with the European Economic Community in fact may balloon even further in coming months, beyond its $2.30 billion surplus set in April this year, they said.

The decline for May's overall Japanese surplus is likely to be accentuated by a sharp rise in oil

imports during the month, Iwaki

The oil imports will augment the already brisk Japanese buying of foreign goods, he said. The domestic economy is amazingly strong and will probably show 10 per cent growth for the first quarter of this year, he added.

This growth in imports will more than offset any rise of exports, which continue to bulge from shipments of capital goods machinery and parts needed for setting up new production plants overseas, economists said.

The strong yen has encouraged the new investments overseas, with corporations moving production out of Japan to keep products competitive in overseas markets, economists added.

CHICAGO, June 8, (AP): International bankers and businessmen said yesterday the stage was being set for the eventual creation of a universal banking system, which would offer a variety of financial services to customers worldwide. For one thing, regulatory barriers that separated investment and commercial banks, such as the 1930s depression-era glass-steagall act in the United States, were being abolished or re-examined, Rainer E. Gut, chairman of Credit Suisse in Zurich, told the international monetary conference. He said the bank of the future will have to change its business strategy by becoming more competitive and aggressive. "In the 1990s, the typical manager in a successful universal bank will be globally oriented, have a flair for market opportunities and possess entrepreneurial instincts," Gut said in prepared remarks released in advance. Japan and EEC agree to step up trade talks

BRUSSELS, June 8. (AP): Japanese Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita and European Economic Community officials agreed yesterday to step up bilateral trade contacts. At talks at the EEC head office, Takeshita responded favourably to a suggestion by EEC Commission President Jacques Delors to create a panel of experts to discuss technical aspects of rocky EEC-Japan trade relations, officials said.

Stressed Takeshita also stressed the need for Japan and the 12-nation EEC to widen their relations beyond trade to cultural and scientific sectors. "The relationship between Europe and Japan is not very strong or as well developed" as that between the United States and both Europe and Japan, and aide to Takeshita told reporters. Senior EEC and Japanese officials meet annually. An EEC official, speaking on condition he not be named, said Delors believed more frequent regular, meetings of experts could be useful in defusing trade tensions.

Yesterday's talks dealt with trade-related issues and the economic summit later this monty in Toronto of the seven leading industrial nations.

It was agreed that the summit topics should include economic cooperation and the world debt situation, officials said.

At yesterday's talks, the EEC official said EEC foreign trade commissioner Willy de Clercq noted a remarkable improvement in trade relations" between the 12-nation trade bloc and Japan, even though the EEC continues to register a large trade deficit with Japan.

This gap shrank by four per cent in 1987, but was still 20.9 billion European currency units ($25 billion). For his part, Takeshita said the EEC's plans to turn the 12 EEC states into a single, borderless market by the end of 1992 was good for Japan. Restrictions But his aide quoted him as saying: "the single market after 1992 should be the one which is open to the outside quoted as saying.

Among specific trade issues discussed were Japan's high taxes on imported liquor and cars, the difficulties of foreign companies tendering for Japanese public-works projects and better access for EEC exports of telecommunications hardware and semiconductors.

Urged

The EEC side also urged Japan to liberalise its banking sector. Officials said Delors stressed European banks must be able to establish themselves in Japan to make it easier to finance European exports and invest-

De Clercq also called on Japan to quickly comply with a General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade ruling to amend an accord with the United States on trade in semiconductors. The world trade body has ruled the deal discriminates against the EEC.

U.K. STOCKS MIXED IN AFTERNOON AFTER DULL START LONDON, JUNE 8, REUTER - SHARES WERE MIXED IN SLACK LATE AFTERNOON BUSINESS WITH SELECTIVE SPECULATIVE INTEREST AND A FIRMER OPENING ON WALL STREET HOLDING PRICES ABOVE THE LOWS SEEN EARLY ON IN THE SESSION, DEALERS SAID.

TODAY WAS GENERALLY LISTLESS AND WANTING TO DRIFT EASIER. THERE WERE MARGINALLY MORE RISERS THAN FALLERS ON THE LEADER BOARD BUT MANY OF THE GAINS WERE IN RESPONSE TO SPECIAL SITUATIONS, DEALERS SAID.

AMSTRAD TOPPED THE ACTIVES LIST WITH TURNOVER OF 10.1 MLN SHARES BY 1459 GMT. THE SHARES WERE UP 11P TO 196 AFTER AMSTRAD SAID IT WAS LAUNCHING A SATELLITE TELEVISION DISH AND RECEIVER FOR THE MASS MARKET PRICED AT 199 STG.

LONDON, JUNE 8, REUTER - GOLD CLOSED 5.50 DLRS LOWER AT 457.50/458.00 DLRS AN OUNCE WITH SENTIMENT DEPRESSED BY SMARPLY EASIER CHICAGO SOYBEAN FUTURES FOLLOWING RAIN IN SOME U.S. GROWING REGIONS, DEALERS SAID.

THE METAL EASED OVERNIGHT AS WEATHER REPORTS BEGAN TO EMERGE ND GOLD OPENED AT 458.60/459.10. PRICES INITIALLY HELD FAIRLY STEADY AND GOLD HAD A MORNING FIX OF 458.75.

London Money Market

LONDON, JUNE 8, REUTER - MONEY MARKET INTEREST RATES ENDED MOSTLY 3/16 POINT EASIER AS A STRENGHTENING IN STERLING'S POSITION TO OVER 3.12 MARKS REMOVED ANY PROSPECT FOR A FURTHER NEAR TERM RISE IN U.K. BASE RATES.

DEALERS SAID THE RECENT DOUBLE RISE IN BASE RATES HAS GIVEN.

THE POUND BACK SOME OF ITS LUSTRE AS A HIGH INTEREST CURRENCY BUT MOST THOUGHT THE NERVOUSNESS INSPIRED BY NEXT TUESDAY'S U.S. TRADE FIGURES WOULD LIMIT ITS UPSIDE FOR NOW.

THE KEY THREE MONTH STERLING INTERBANK RATE DROPPED 3/16 POINT TO 8-9/16 7/16, A LEVEL WHICH SUGGESTS THE CURRENT 8-1/2 PCT BASE RATE WILL BE HELD FOR SOME TIME, THEY ADDED.

Wall Street Market Report

New York, June 8, (Reuter): Wall Street stocks were broadly higher with Blue Chips inching their way upward. Stocks were encouraged by firm bond prices and a strong dollar, traders said. But another rise in commodities futures prices dampened market advances, they added.

The dow rose 12 to 2067, while gainers led decliners by about two to one.

MacMillan, the focus of a hostile takeover attempt by the Robert Bass Group, gained 3/8 to 75-7/8. The company said its board considered and rejected Bass's sweetened 73 dir a share offer and an alternative Bass recapitalisation plan.

ZURICH PS

LONDON, June 8, (AP): An Arab investment bank said yesterday it has acquired a stake of almost 50 per cent in Guccio Gucci SPA of Italy from Morgan Stanley International for an undisclosed sum.

The investment bank, Arab Banking Corp, is based in Bahrain and is known as Invest-

Morgan Stanley, the US investment bank, had acquired the shares in Gucci, a maker of luxury handbags, shoes, clothes, and fashion accessories, in a series of transactions from members of the feuding Gucci family over a period of eight months. said Andrea Morante, a Morgan Stanley official.

Florence-based Gucci was founded by Guccio Gucci in the early 1900s as a saddiery business and has been controlled by his grandsons.

Investcorp said separately that it was buying a stake in Gucci's US affiliate but didn't elaborate on the size of the stake involved. A joint statement issued in London by Investcorp and Morgan Stanley said 50 percent of the Italian company is held by

A shareholding of less than three per cent is held by Roberto Gucci, another of the founder's grandsons.

Paul Dimitruk, a member of Investoorp's management committee, said Investcorp isn't currently pursuing the acquisition of the additional Italian Gucci shares. "We are looking forward with confidence to a long, stable and harmonious ownership relationship with the other shareholders and the company's current operating management," Dimitruk said.

Investcorp, whose shares are mainly held by investors from the Arabian Gulf states, is a small investment bank which specialises in taking short-and mediumterm stakes in relatively small, well-known companies. Its recent investment activities include a major stake in the US jeweller, Tiffany and Co.

The Italian company had 1987 sales of about 220 billion lire ($180 million) and the American arm had sales of $150 million last

Egypt approves law for Islamic investment firms

CAIRO, June 8, (Reuter): Parliament passed a law today regulating Islamic investment companies in Egypt amid signs the firms would not confront the government over the measures.

In a lightning spell of legislation, the cabinet approved the draft law last Saturday and published the text on Sunday before sending it to the people's assem-

The law was prompted by солcern over the largely unfettered operations of increasingly popular Islamic firms, which pay higher returns than banks and have attracted billions of dollars in small savings in this mainly Muslim country.

The companies, established under a liberal economic system introduced by the late President Anwar Sadat in 1974, reject fixed interest rates, banned by Islam. Company officials had planned to draft hundreds of thousands of depositors to speak out publicly on the law. But they appeared today to back down.

"The law which has been passed by the parliament is reasonable and we can perform our business without problems," said Tarek Abu Hussein, chairman of Al Hoda Misr, one of the biggest Islamic investment firms.

Abu Hussein told Reuters other major companies, including Al Rayan and Al Saad, also endorsed the new law and a joint statement would be issued.

He said the four biggest firms had cancelled a planned joint mass rally next Sunday to discuss a response to the measure.

The law brings Islamic firms under regulation by a state agency, gives them a year to turn themselves into public companies, and tightens controls requiring them to transfer over-seas funds into Egypt through the banks, for example.

KD deposits ease in quiet trade

KUWAITI dinar interbank deposits eased in quiet trade yesterday, with liquidity remaining high despite a new KD100 million offering of 91-day Treasury bills.

Dealers said a maturing issue of KD90 million of bills, coupled with an influx of funds from the offshore market, provided banks with surplus cash for the new offering of government paper and helped exert downward pressure on raies.

The Central Bank said it had received KD229 million worth of bids for the bills which were alloted at an average price of 98.451 for a discount yield of 6.213 per cent.

Short-dated funds were all well-offered, with offers for overnight funds put at 1/2 per cent and tomorrow-next at one per Spot-next dealt at three per cent, reflecting a decline of around two percentage points from Tuesday's levels. Dealers reported two-way trade in one and two-month deposits, which dealt at 6-1/8, and 6-1/4 per cent respectively.

Three-months eased 1/8 point to 6-3/8, 1/8 per cent while sixmonths inched down 1/16 point to 6-3/16, 1/8 per cent. The Central Bank left its exchange rate unchanged at 0.27548/58 to the dollar. Commercial banks quoted rates of 0.27565/72.

Meanwhile, in Bahrain, Saudi riyal deposits surged once again yesterday in a market dominated by speculation that Saudi Arabia will soon launch a long-awaited government bond issue to finance its 1988 budget deficit.

Traders said the market had begun quietly softer, but soon turned higher again as banks in the kingdom and offshore Bahrain market started increasing already long riyal positions.

The rise had been sparked by Saudi Arabian Monetary Agency Governor Hamad Al Sayari's confirmation last Sunday that the bonds scheme was still going ahead. Timing of a launch remains unclear, but banks are anticipating a heavy drain of liquidity.

Amadeus officially launched

THE presidents of four European airlines, Air France, Iberia, Lufthansa and SAS, recently ratified an agreement marking the official creation of Amadeus.

To efficiently handle increased traffic loads over more numerous destinations, airlines are depending more and more on computers.

Recognising this trend, Air France approached Lufthansa in Nov 1986 to propose the development of a joint computerised information distribution system.

The goal is to establish a system that would provide members of the travel industry comprehensive information on hotel reservations, car rental, insurance, etc. In 1987 Iberia and SAS joined the development. The Amadeus system. it is claimed would become one of the largest information and distributions systems in the world.

Veto of trade bill will be sustained: White House

Reagan favoured in Senate showdown

WASHINGTON, June 8, (AP): The White House expressed confidence today about winning a Senate attempt to override President Ronald Reagan's veto of comprehensive trade legisla-

We believe the veto will be sustained," presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said. He said the administration will begin working quickly with Congress on another version.
"Our discussions with the Congress indicate that a number of members would like to have a trade bili - Democrat and Republican - that they feel it's important for the country, as well as politically, and the committee leadership certainly is interested in a bill," said Fitzwater.

"I think there is a growing body that feels like a trade bill is needed and can be passed," he

But some, such as Republican Sen. John Heinz, a strong supporter of the bill, said they still thought a version acceptable to Reagan could be fashioned this congressional session.

Override

The House of Representatives already has voted to override Reagan's veto of the bill. Senate failure to follow suit could doom trade legislation for the rest of 1988 and send some administration loyalists into fall election campaigns with an achilles heel

The bill's chief provisions would overhaul the system under which the government imposes import curbs to aid US industries and retaliate against international trade violations.

Reagan's May 24 veto focused on a provision that would require companies with 100 employees or more to provide their workers with 60-day notice of plant closings and large-scale layoffs. He said the provision would take away too much management flexibility. Reagan also was critical of restrictions in the bill on Alaskan oil exports.

Failed

A two-thirds majority is needed in Congress to override a presidential veto. The bill's backers failed to gain that when the Senate passed the bill 63-36 on April 27, and the lawmakers appeared to remain frozen in the positions they took then. Some supporters of the Republican administration clearly would like another crack at the issue before the November presidential election. The administration has been urging a scaled-down bill that would win the president's support. But the Democratic leader in the Senate. Robert Byrd, has been warning that a fresh bill would be peppered with amendments and could become hopelessly bogged

Byrd said yesterday the bill's "pulse is still beating," but there was nothing he could do to budge the perhaps 36 senators prepared to sustain Reagan's veto.

Byrd told reporters there was still hope that home-state pressures would change a few minds at the last minute. "This veto is going to be used as a political issue this year; we all know that," Heinz warned his colleagues. As debate began, Heinz said the political potential of the issue should not prompt lawmakers to give up on trying to fashion a bill that Reagan would sign.

"Anybody can just sit in the stands and boo the umpire," he said. "If there's a chance to pull this game out -- albeit in extra innings -- we should at least take our last at bats."

Senate Republican minority leader Bob Dole said getting another trade bill through this year might take an agreement that would bar amendments. He said there was precedent for doing that but indicated it still might be difficult.

"If the president's veto is sustained," said Sen. Alan Cranston, a Democrat, "it may be a long, long time before we get another chance to pass a comprehensive trade bill. Don't let anyone tell you that it will be as simple as passing the same trade bill without the plant-closing provision to which the president objects."

Egypt begins crucial economic review with IMF

CAIRO, June 8, (Reuter): Egypt and the International Monetary Fund (IMF) have started a secret review of the country's economic performance that should decide the fate of their difficult year-old relationship, diplomats and officials said

President Hosni Mubarak had talks with key economic ministers as an IMF expert prepared the ground for next weekend's arrival of senior fund officials.

At stake in the review, due to take up to two weeks, is a new standby credits accord which would underpin a request for fresh debt rescheduling which Cairo is expected to make soon. "These talks will be quite crucial, something of a watershed," said a Western embassy economist. "They will determine whether there is scope for a new agreement. state, saddled with $43 billion of

But they might be angered by nlanned public service wage rises. and a bigger budget deficit projected in next fiscal year's draft budget, diplomats said.

Cairo is still negotiating unhurriedly with se governments about the fine print on a total of $1.2 billion in debt reschedulings under a Paris Club accord.

The agreement expires on June 30 but experts said the deadline was not rigid.

"The bond issue is on," said one senior banker. "Banks will be telexed on either this Saturday or next about the issue." Leading bankers were summoned to the central bank, the Saudi Arabian Monetary Agency (SAMA), earlier this week where broad outlines of the issue were explained. The briefing ended five months of uncertainty over the onoff-on-off bonds scheme, first unveiled by King Fahd in his budget address to the nation at the turn of the year.

It breaks a 25-year-old taboo surrounding government borr-owing and is seen by bankers as dictated by the harsh reality of weak oil revenues and dwindling foreign reserves.

Unsure Bankers are sitll unsure as to the exact form of the bonds but expect full details to be revealed in a telex invitation.

The first tranche to banks will be between one billion and three billion riyals ($265 to 800 million)," said one banker. "Maturities will vary from between one and five years." Bankers said the government had placed bonds for an un-

One source of delay during the past months appears to have been opposition from religious groups opposed to the Western concept of interest payments and development of Saudi Arabia's Western-style banking system. Besides providing funds for a

Sales show bad year for businessmen

THE 1988 summer sales has ended and indications are that it has been a bad year for businessmen. Kuwait imports showed a continuous drop since 1982, the year during which Kuwait was at its economical peak and showed record imports valued at KD2385 million.

An economical report by the Central Bank of Kuwait show Kuwait's imports in 1986 at KD1534 million. Spending on government and private consumption dropped from KD4357 million in 1982 to

KD4100 million in 1985. Attributed

This drop was attributed to the drop in local consumption of commodities and services. The economic classification for Kuwait imports indicate 1984 to be the year of highest record for consumer commodities with Japan being the main source of manufactured goods exported to Higher currency exchange rates for some currencies during 1986 and 1987 will lead to an increase in prices of these countries' commodities. Conversely, market sources expect an increase on imports from sources which deal with dollars.

Korea emerged as one of the main sources of Kuwait's electrical appliances and car imports with 1988 summer sales showing the same trend as 1987 winter In an interview with a local daily: the sales manager of Al Andalus trading company,

Jamal Al Taher described

Kuwait's general market condi-

New York on foot

Walking in a jungle called Manhattan

By Adam Nicolson

WHERE Manhattan comes to its artificial point in Battery Park, built out into the bay after decades of accumulating rubbish from the foundations of buildings to the north, the view induces ecstasy — Brooklyn across the water, Liberty on her island, the sun on the oilers moving out to the Narrows and the Atlantic beyond them. Here the first Dutch settlers in New Amsterdam landed from Europe, and from here they returned. It was known as the Weeping Quay, named after its twin in Holland.

Turn north to the cliff of the business district. It is like an English port town — Chiche-ster, Woodbridge or Whitby grown big on itself, a freak baby, weighing 20 stone, a little thing thick with elephantiasis, the bloated numbers pinned to a fragile structure of winding, narrow streets. Trinity Church at the head of Wall Street, facing the Bank of Tokyo and the Irving Trust Co, sits here as a black little grandmother dwarfed by her shining progeny.

North of the money belt, moving up Nassau Street, there is a sudden growth of messy shops, selling hiking gear, fishing tackle and bras reduced by 20 per cent. On the street in front of the vent, where the steak-flavoured air is blown out from the restaurant kitchen at passing feet, a man lies whispering about his children and the pencils he has for sale.

Growth

For a city so famous for its divisions, there is a curiously easy slurring of categories as you pass from big business to marginal enterprise and on to City Hall, the courts and government offices. Here is one great pleasure of New York: sliding by, the Los Angeles sensation on foot, the sidewalk, the fre-

Ihad lunch at Jean Lafitte on 68 West 58th Street. It was delicious. A place where authors, wearing consciously rag-ged jeans and shirts made sweaty by real life, smile to their lipsticked agents smiling across at them, and joke about the age of boyfriends and the problem of always repeating one's father in the boyfriends one chooses.

The agents order the boys lobster because that's what they deserve. Their other acquaintances speak bad French to the waiter from Milwaukee, who speaks bad French back until, without laughing the French breaks down and one asks of the other: "What's the soup anyway?" The answer: "French onton," is also delivered without laughblock something worried me. There was something almost spookily coherent about the street. What lay behind this moneyed coherence north of 60th Street? And then I realised: it is the only place in the world where the people look like shops. Not like the mannequins or the clothes on dis-play in the shops, but like the shops themselves.

The fashion ideal of Madison Avenue is plate-glass sunglasses, a suit that looks as much as possible like wipedown tiling and tone-in grout, the face plastered white, the "ambience," as they might say in Jean Lafitte, exuding wealth despite every effort to deny it.

On 74th and Madison there was grass for sale, mini-prairies in little black pots. On Seventh, a Henry Moore shop and then the crusty bread shop and the PS-I-Love-You shop, and the do-your-bedroom-out-in-brass-and-broderie-anglaise-because-you'll-feel-better shop.

At the end, north of 96th
Street, it is not Madison that darkens, but the cross-streets, which empty and roughen, which lose the shine, and are not made-up.

Look back at that lit slot to the south, then bring your eyes lower and down to the street and see the self-sufficiency of prosperous New York mixed with the occasionally flaccid face of the Upper East Side inheritance millionaire.

Dear Junior Readers,

When the holidays began, how many of you thought that you did not need to open a book until school started again? How many of you watch television for hours and hours every day and think that reading is boring?

But reading really has a lot to offer: adventure stories; the lives of great men and women in history; facts about our world, knowledge of how people in other countries live; how things were invented; how to do and make things ... the list goes on and on.

So, no more cries of "Murn, I'm bored." Open a book and just see what you will find!

HOW MANY WORDS CAN YOU MAKE FROM THE WORD -

By Natalie Savage Carlson

ONCE in another time, Jean Labadie was the most popular storyteller in the parish. He acted out every story so that it would seem more real.

When he told about the great falls of Niagara, he made a booming noise deep in his throat and whirled his fists around each other. Then each listener could plainly hear the falls and see the white water churning and splashing as if it were about to pour down on his own head. But Jean Labadie had to stop telling his stories about the loupgarou, that demon who takes the shape of a terrible animal and pounces upon those foolish people who go out alone at night. Every time the storyteller dropped down on all fours, rolled his eyes, snorted, and clawed at the floor, his listeners ran away from him in terror.

It was only on the long winter evenings that Jean had time to tell these tales. All the rest of the year, he worked hard with his cows and his pigs and his chick-

One day Jean Labadie noticed that his flock of chickens was getting smaller and smaller. He began to suspect that his neighbour, Andre Drouillard, was stealing them. Yet he never could catch Andre in the act.

For three nights running, Jean took his gun down from the wall and slept in the henhouse with his chickens. But the only thing that happened was that his hens were disturbed by having their feeder roost with them, and they stopped laying well. So Jean sighed and put his gun back and climbed into his own bed again.

One afternoon when Jean went to help his neighbour mow the weeds around his barn, he found a bunch of grey chicken feathers near the fence. Now he was sure that Andre was taking his chickens, for all of his neighbour's chickens were scrawny white things. He did not know how to broach the matter to Andre without making an enemy of him. And when one lives in the country and needs help with many tasks, it is a great mistake to make an enemy of a close neighbour. Jean studied the matter as his scythe went swish, swish through the tall weeds. At last he thought of a way

'Have you seen my big black dog, Andre?' he asked his neighbour.

'What big black dog?' asked Andre. 'I didn't know you had a dog.'

'I just got him from the Indians, said Jean. Someone has been stealing my chickens so I got myself a dog to protect them. He is a very fierce dog, bigger than a wolf and twice as wild.

Jean took one hand off the scythe and pointed to the ridge behind the barn. 'There he goes now,' he cried, with his big red tongue hanging out of his mouth. See him! Andre looked but could see nothing.

'Surely you must see him. He runs along so fast. He lifts one paw this way and another paw that

As Jean said this, he dropped the scythe and lifted first one hand in its black glove and then the other.

Andre looked at the black gloves going up and down like the paws of a big black dog. Then he looked toward the ridge. He grew

'Yes, yes,' he cried. 'I do see him now. He is running along the fence. He lifts one paw this way and another paw that way, just like you say.'

Jean was pleased that he was such a good actor he could make Andre see a dog that didn't exist at all.

Now that you have seen him,' he said, 'you will know him if you should meet. Give him a wide path and don't do anything that will make him suspicious. He is very fierce watchdog."

Andre promised to stay a safe distance from the big black dog. Jean Labadie was proud of his trick. No more chickens disappeared. It seemed that his problem was solved.

Then one day Andre greeted him with, 'I saw your big black dog in the road today. He was running along lifting one paw this way and another paw that way. I got out of his way, you can bet my life! Jean Labadie was pleased and annoyed at the same time. Pleased that Andre believed so completely in the big black dog that he actually could see him. He was also annoyed because the big black dog had been running down the road when he should have been on the farm.

Another day Andre leaned over the fence.

'Good day, Jean Labadie,' he said. 'I saw your big black dog on the other side of the village. He was jumping over fences and bushes. Isn't it a bad thing for him to wander so far away? Someone might take him for the loupgarou.'

Jean Labadie was disgusted with his neighbour's good imagination.

'Andre,' he asked, 'how can my dog be on the other side of the village when he is right here at home? See him walking through the yard, lifting one paw this way and another pay that Andre looked in Jean's yard with surprise.

'And so he is,' he agreed. 'My faith, what a one he is! He must run like lightning to get home so fast. Perhaps you should chain him up. Someone will surely mistake such a fast dog for the loup-garou."

Jean shrugged hopeles-

'All right,' he said. 'Perhaps you are right. I will chain him near the henhouse.

They will be very happy to hear that in the village. said Andre. 'Everyone is afraid of him. I have told them all about him, how big and fierce he is, how his long red tongue hangs out of his mouth and how he lifts one paw this way and another paw that way.

Jean was angry.
I would thank you to leave my dog alone. Andre Drouillard, he said stiffly.

'Oh, ho, and that I do! retorted Andre. But today on the road he growled and snapped at me. I would not be here to tell the story if I hadn't taken to a tall maple

Jean Labadie pressed his lips together.

Then I will chain him up this very moment.' He gave a long low whistle. Come, fellow! Here, fellow!' Andre Drouillard took to his heels. Of course, this should have ended the matter, and Jean Labadie thought that it had. But one day when he went to the village to buy some nails for his roof; he ran into Madame Villeneuve in a great how-doesit-make of excitement.

As it gradually cooled, the magma solidified on the surface and the Earth became covered with a crust of primeval rocks, mainly consisting of granite and basalt. These rocks encased our globe like a rigid shell, while inside it continued to be burning

When the Earth cooled still more it shrank, and the rocky layer which covered it had to contract, like an apple whose skin wrinkles as it withers.

The shell of primeval rocks wrinkled and folded under the strong lateral pressures caused by this shrinking. In some places it sank into the underlying magma; in others it rose up towards the sky.

That is how the first mountains were formed but there is no trace of them left today. Countless disturbances over the ages have completely destroyed them. The mountain we admire today are from later periods and in some cases are comparatively recent.

The black pieces of coal still used today in industry and for heating many homes therefore have a history dating from that time. They were formed by the decomposition of the forests which then covered the surface of the Earth. As time passed, the enormous trunks, felled by age or storms, formed thick layers of wood which were then buried under layers of mud and sand. Instead of rotting, the wood changed completely, partly because it was no longer in contact with the air and partly because of the tremendous pressures and heat of the

Clipped again

You ask someone to count some loose paperclips, then to bundle them together and wrap a rubber band around them. After the clips are placed under your friend's hand. you snap your magic fingers. When the bundle is unwrapped, the paperclips have magically linked themselves together into a chain.

The preparation:

Find fourteen paperclips and two rubber bands exactly alike. Take seven of the clips and link them into a chain, double them up (accordian pleat them) into the length of one clip, and wrap one of the rubber bands around the bundle. (1) Keep the loose seven clips and the other rubber band in a small dish or box. Conceal the linked bundle of clips in a convenient

The trick: Dump the loose clips and the rubber band in front of your friend and ask for them to be counted. While the clips are being counted and wrapped with the rubber band you secretly get the linked bundle in your right hand and cradle it in the crook of your last two fingers (2). Pick up the bundle of loose clips that he has just wrapped with the tips of the fingers of the right hand, and at the same time, take the other person's right hand you which gives you ample opportunity to drop your linked bundle on the table and retain the loose clips in your fingers. (3). Place your friend's hand right on top of the paperclips, pause a moment, and then snap your fingers. And as your friend picks up the bundle of paperclips on the table and unwraps them, you have plenty of time to casually drop the loose clips into your lap, a pocket, or the loose clips into your lap, a pocket, or the drawer of your desk. Isn't it wonderful how paperclips stick together?

STAGE SET FOR EUROPEAN SOCCER CHAMPIONSHIP

Gullit gets chance to take Maradona's crown

DUESSELDORF, West Germany, June 8, (Reuter): Ruud Gullit, the dreadlocked Dutchman who has inspired a renaissance of the Netherlands' imaginative and free-flowing soccer, will be acclaimed the worlds top player if he leads them to victory in the European Championship finals.

Four years after Michel Platini took France to triumph, Gullit has taken over his mantle as Europe's outstanding player and ousted Argentine Diego Maradona as the most-feted foreigner in the tough Italian League.

Success in the highly-competitive and evenly-matched eight-nation tournament which begins here on Friday would lift him above Maradona as the world's leading talent and establish the Netherlands once again as the most tactically-innovative team of their generation.

Although every team has equal justification in claiming they will win the Henri Delaunay trophy, it is the Dutch who have captured the imagination with the dazzling improvisation of Netherlands against England in Duesseldorf on June 15 overshadows all else because of the threat of hooliganism.

But the elegant Dutch are more likely to be matched on the pitch in Group Two by the Soviet Union, who eliminated France in the qualifiers, than England.

Like the Danes, and to some extent the English, the European finals offer the Soviet team a last chance to fulfil the promise they first revealed in Mexico two years ago.

With players of the quality of Vassily Rats, Alexander Zavarov and Igor Belanov, they could reach the last four and even possibly their fourth final.

Ireland, making their first appearance, complete the group. They should not be dismissed lightly following a run of 10 games without defeat under English coach Jack Charlton. A World Cup-winning layer in

Schuster joins Real in $6m deal

MADRID, June 8, (Reuter) West German midfielder Bernd Schuster has joined Spanish League champions Real Madrid for three years in a 56 million

"it's very important for my soccer career signing for Real Madrid. It's a very calmclub that 1, knows what it's doing and that gives me a lot of confidence. Schuster said.

Clashes

Schuster, 28, spent the last eight years with Barcelona where he had several problems, clashing with coaches, players and club president Jose Luis Nunez.

During the European Cup final against Romania's Steaua Bucharest in Seville two years ago, he stormed home from the stadium after being substituted by Barcelona's coach at that time, Terry Venables. Barcelona lost the match on penalties.

Nunez kept him on the bench throughout the 1986-87 season and Schuster refused to renew his contract

The West German would not comment on investigations into his alleged tax evasion. Schuster. along with Nunez, was charged two weeks ago by a judge who claimed he failed to pay 6.6 million pesetas ($60,000) in tax between 1983 and 1986.
